“Respect for ourselves guides our morals, respect for others guides our manners.”

– Laurence Sterne

Dear Parents,

Greetings of the day!

‘Respect’ is a term that I am sure we have heard being repeated during our growing years and probably now repeating the same to our children.

‘Respect’ is the key ingredient to Harmony in any place- be it home, work place, state or nation. If each one respects the other, there will be less of hatred, more of acceptance and peace. And, the first step towards developing this respect to others starts from respecting oneself or self -respect.

What is Self- respect? Defining one’s own worth and value as a human being. If one does not respect oneself, it will be difficult to respect anyone else. At the same time when one values oneself as more important than the others then it is Self -importance and leads to arrogance.

Being honest, polite, kind, consistent; developing the skills of listening to others, ability to identify friends who have a positive influence, ability to apologize when needed, taking responsibility for one’s actions, health, conduct, knowledge; setting goals and working towards them - will all lead to building respect for one self. This in turn will guide us in our approach to others thus developing respect for them and in the process gaining respect as well.

Signing off with this message - Let us work together and respect the time and effort that you as a parent put in for the development of your child and we as a school put in for each one of our students. Let us be in this journey together.

Happy Independence Day to All! Proud to be an Indian!

Warm regards,
Udaya Rajesh
